Bulle Rock Among Top 10 in Nation

(Havre de Grace, MD) In the October issue of Golf World Magazine, 50 courses were chosen to be the Best of the Best and Bulle Rock ranked 9th in the Readers' Choice Awards for public golf courses in 2009. The readers choice award is a ranking of courses by their reader's regular golfers.

"We are so proud that Maryland's top public golf course has been acclaimed as one of the top 10 in the Country, stated Wini Roche, Tourism & Marketing Manager for Harford County." We encourage golfers from near and far will put Bulle Rock and our other 6 public courses on their "must play" list."

Bulle Rock continues to receive recognition as one of the premier public courses in the mid-Atlantic region. This is the second recognition Bulle Rock was honored with this year. In the May issue of Golf Digest, Bulle Rock was awarded a five star rating as one of North America's best choices for public golf. Bulle Rock was listed as one of only twenty-four courses to receive the rating and joined an elite list of courses including Pebble Beach, Pinehurst, Kiawah, and Blackwolf.

Since its opening in 1998, the Pete Dye designed course offers 18 holes surrounded by the natural beauty of the Chesapeake region. Bulle Rock was named after the first thoroughbred horse brought to America and is widely known as the host of the acclaimed McDonalds LPGA Championship which will return to the venue in 2009.
